Young people in Latin America face overwhelming challenges

They attend school for four hours a day, on average, in a public education system that lacks the most basic resources.

The COVID-19 pandemic aggravated the education crisis. Eighty percent of sixth-grade students in the region now underperform in basic reading comprehension.* Recovering from this learning loss could take up to a decade.

This reality, compounded by some of the highest rates of youth violence globally, perpetuates cycles of poverty and marginalization.

School Sponsor Spotlight

Mike Kazma has been a dedicated champion of Glasswing's schools for over ten years. In addition to contributing critical funds that have allowed public schools in Guatemala to thrive, Mike has volunteered alongside his Amzak Capital employees in school transformations.

"I know first-hand that our support changes the lives of hundreds of children, and it is really gratifying to see how it also empowers parents and the entire community."

Ana Morales has sponsored Glasswing community schools for over six years. As an experienced philanthropist, volunteer, and long-time champion of girls, she understands how important schools and communities are to providing safe spaces and opportunities for all kids.

"I believe that schools are the ideal place for children and young people to learn to believe in themselves, dream big, and become who they aspire to be. We know how important it is for kids to have caring adults, and people they look up to, in their lives. Every child deserves the same opportunities, even if they are born into different circumstances."
